REAL COMFORT IN THE BATHROOM... HYDROMASSAGE

What is Hydromassage?

Hydromassage, which is defined as the massage movement created by the compressed air and water mixture hitting the human body directly and indirectly, is considered as the most effective hydrotherapy method. Hydromassage systems used in Kale's bathtub and massage shower systems, have all the features that will purify your body from stress and fatigue. Kale hydromassage systems have two different types as water and air massage. Spraying pressurized water into the body through jets is a water massage. The delivery of air into the tub through the blower is called air massage.

Highlights of the HydroMassage

- The effect of hydromassage depends on the output power and density of the bubbles, which are composed of a mixture of water and air, rather than the water hitting the body.
- The positions of the air and water jets in the tub and the direction of the water and air coming out are important.
- During the hydromassage, a bath foam should not be added to the bathtub.
- During hydromassage, the temperature of the water in the tub should be around 37 °C.
- Water at 30-35 °C is stimulating.
- Water at 35-37 °C is calming and refreshing.
- The water at 38 °C is relaxant.
- The ideal time for a good massage in hydromassage is 15-20 minutes. Staying too long can lead to undesirable consequences, such as excessive relaxation of the muscles and low blood pressure. It is necessary to start hydromassage at least two hours after meals.

Types of hydromassage systems:

- Water Massage
- Air Massage

HYDROMASSAGE BATHTUBS

Kale hydromassage bathtubs have water and air massage that allows you to get rid of stress and strain. The water massage creates a refreshing effect by directing the water jets directly to the points that the body needs most. Water / air massage relaxes the body with air bubbles coming from the bottom of the tub.

Hydromassage bathtubs bring all the relaxing features of hydromassage to homes without having to go to SPA centers. Hydromassage with a mixture of water, air or water - air renews the body with different effects.

Hydromassage relaxes the user according to the set direction and degree. And also the pains of the person using hydromassage decrease or his body is refreshed.
